Guidance from CURE

Naming Criteria

- Accessible: Could a broad audience understand and embrace it?
- Clear: Does it speak to what our program is about, in some way?
- Compelling: Could it be interesting to students and families?

Naming Approach

- There is no silver bullet
- You build meaning into a name over time
- A name is just part of the brand
- Descriptive or abstract? Strike a balance

Comments

- Many of these choices feel like the rebranding of the centers - another acronym I will forget or too much eduspeak. Creekside is the most likely to be remember and used in my opinion. (However it is very similar to Lakeside)
- We sort of liked the word "Cooperative" since we are many teams working together but are open to other iterations if needed. Here are some suggestions from C4LG staff:
  - Maplewood Cooperative School
  - Azalea Cooperative School
  - Dogwood Cooperative School
  - The Dogwood School
- Ms. Waters' process added to the ownership and positivity for all at the Center for Learning and Growth. I am so appreciative of having the opportunity to be involved.
